

To what extent does the children's upbringing affect their achievements in life ?

Upbringing affects children's achievements in several aspects

Aspect 1

1. Children's vision about life, which could include:
 - Mentality – tolerance towards different ideas, cultures, and religion, political views and different life style;
 - Attitude towards others – being negative or positive people around him/her, don't care about important things,

Mentality

Positive and negative people

Positive people

They accept responsibility

Negative people

They shift responsibility

© Lifehack

Positive people

They think change is the only constant

Negative people

They hate making changes or adapting to changes

© Lifehack

Aspect 2

1. Being successful both academically and in relationship, in sport or in music or any hobby activities
 - Those parents who demonstrate commitment to the goals they set, most likely their children will be able to show their commitment to their own goals
 - self-discipline - hard working, being dedicated, having a strict time schedule ,

Being success

ASPECT 2, BEING SUCCESS

- Motivation – those parents who encourage their children in every activity, they're unlikely to fail and find the way to win
- Being ambitious – setting high goals, embracing failures and moving ahead until reaches what he/she is expected to reach

Aspect 3 – being successful

- Financial and emotional support– the children those parents who invest in their children's education gain the best knowledge and experience in life. The children who received sufficient care from their parents become emotionally and mentally strong compared to those who were lack of care or had less care

Financial and emotional support

Conclusion

- Parents upbringing is highly important in terms of children's well-being and being successful in their lives.
- The credit for an every success achieved by a kid goes to Parents: (enjoy the video)

The hardest job in the world, is the best job in the world!!!!