

London

*London is the capital of GB and Northern Ireland.
It is situated on the banks of the River Thames.*

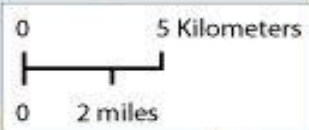

The rebuilding of London followed the medieval plan, but the old wooden houses were replaced by buildings of brick to reduce the fire risk.

LONDON

Today London covers 625 square miles and traditionally is divided into several parts: the City, Westminster, the West End and the East End.

The City is the oldest part of London. People often call it "financial and business heart" of the U.K.

*Westminster is historically the governmental part of London.
Westminster Abbey is famous for its architecture.*

The West End is a symbol of wealth. It is richest and most beautiful part of London.

The East End is an industrial district of London. There are a lot of factories, workshops, docks and the Port of London there.

Whitehall is the street where a lot of government offices are located.

Downing Street (house number 10) is known as the residence of Prime Minister.

Fleet Street is associated with British newspapers.

Harley Street is the place where the highest paid doctors live.

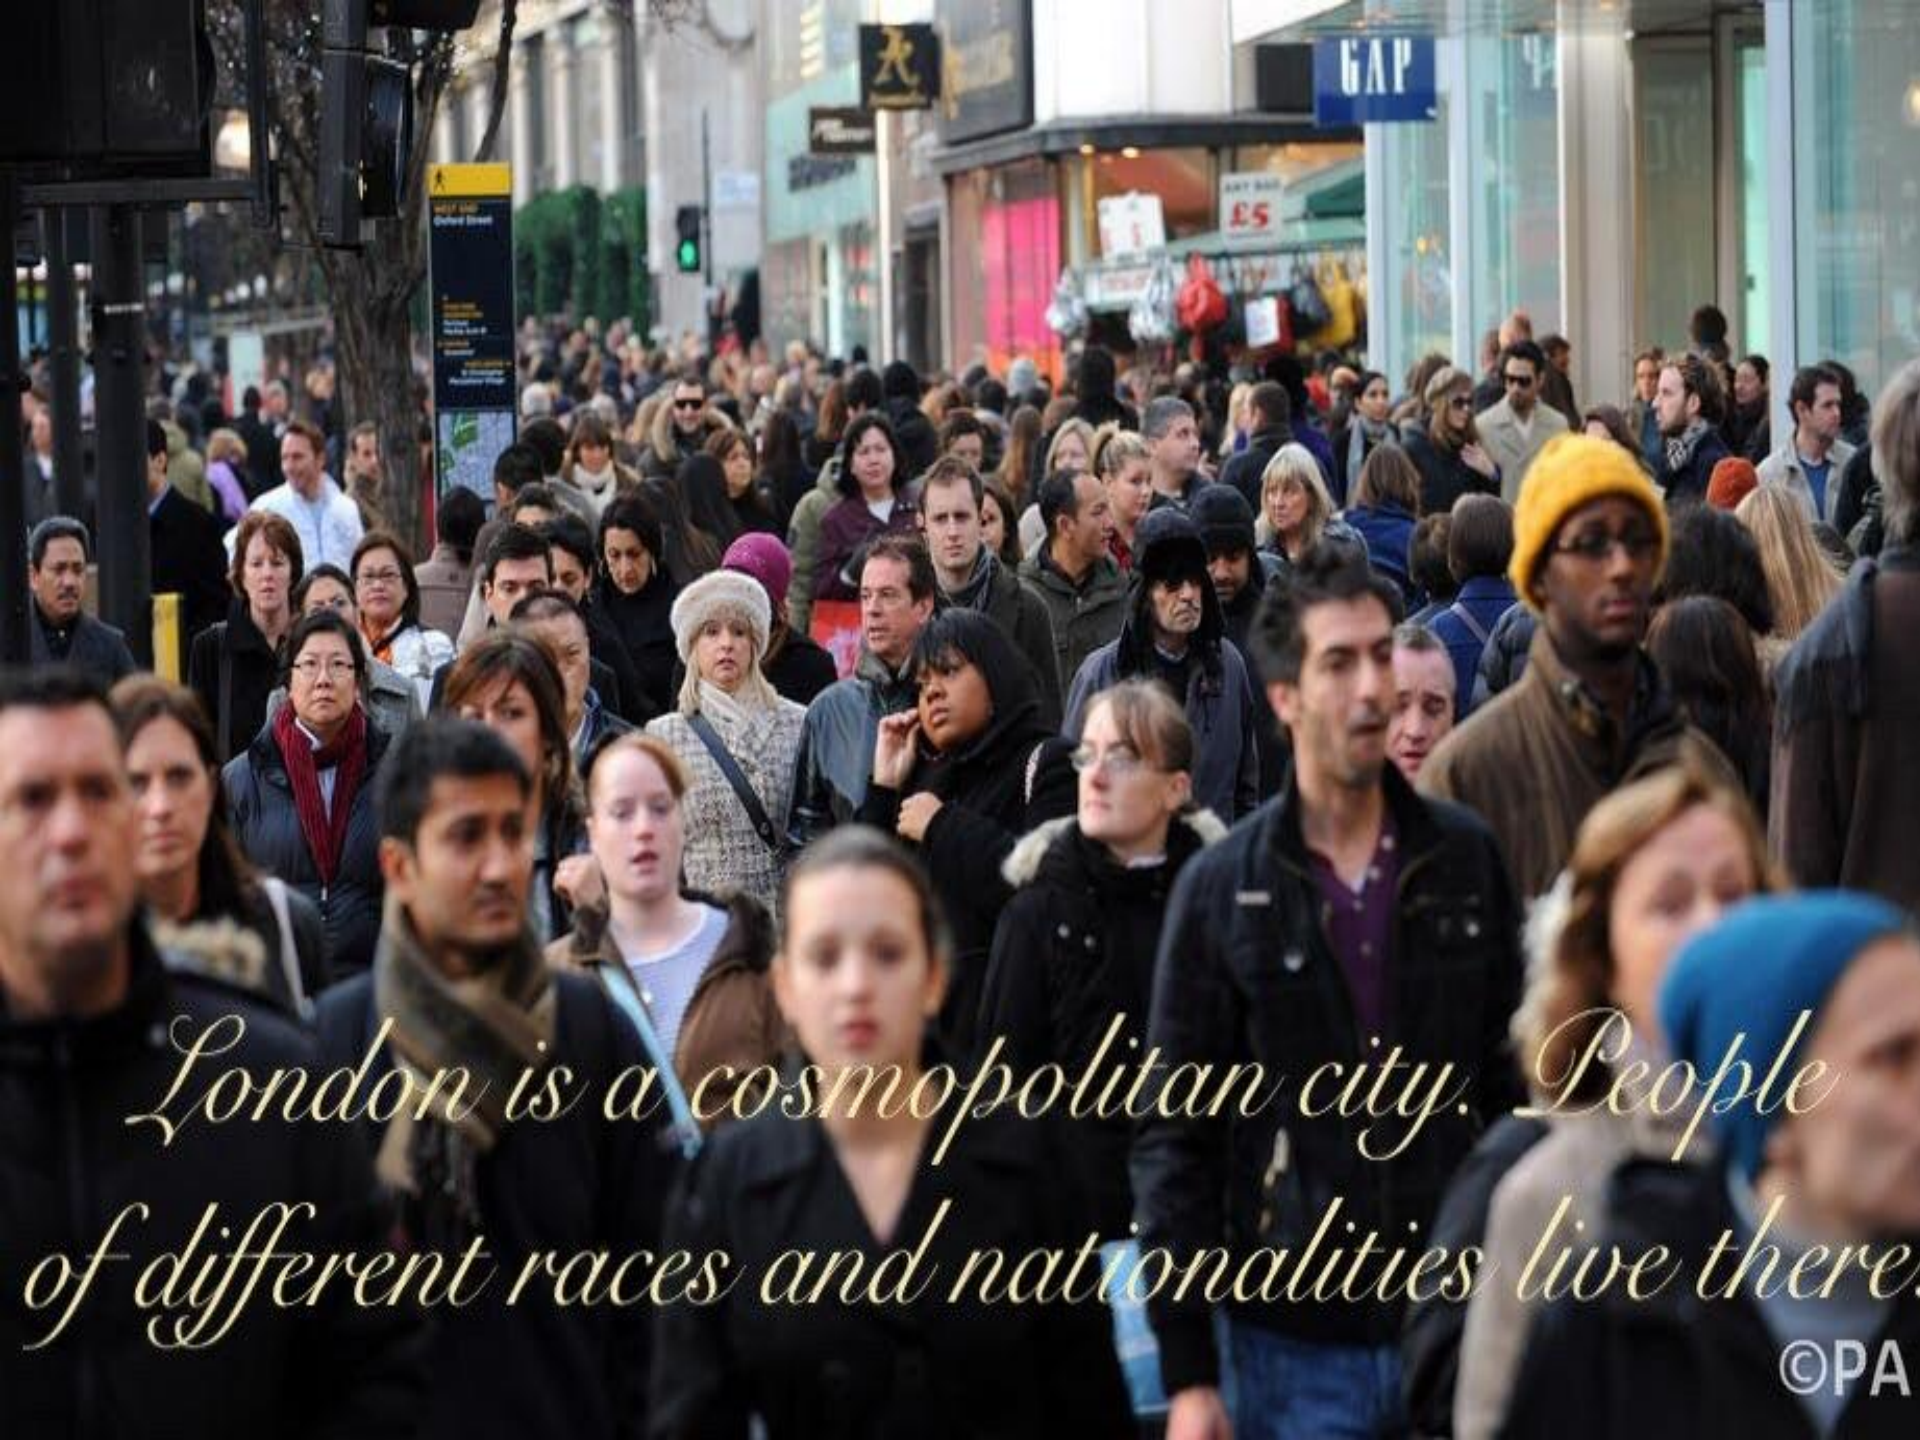

Charring Cross is the street which is famous for bookstores.

Oxford Street is considered to be the busiest street in London

London is a cosmopolitan city. People of different races and nationalities live there.