Features of psychological and pedagogical rehabilitation of children in difficult life situation with the help of media education

Media is not only information technologies, media is a message, content, meaning content of all living and non-living things. For example, art objects, household items, historical artifacts and people.

Practical relevance

My dissertation is a study of the process of rehabilitation of difficult teenagers with the help of media. I believe that with the help of game cases it is possible to socialize deviant children.

For example, to describe their problem or attitude to the world, or the reasons for this attitude in infographics.

The final product of the study will be a Handbook with developed educational modules for teachers and educators.

I hope that the result of my work will be useful to society.

Thank you for your
