HERALDRY

The art of composing emblems

Heraldry

◦Heraldry (from Latin heraldus - herald) is a special historical discipline, concerned with the study of emblems, as well as the tradition and practice of using them.

Any emblem consists of a shield, this is its basement.

The coat of arms

- The heraldic figure (pillar, belt, sling, head, tip, cross, rafter) - the simplest heraldic figures is a small area of the shield, painted with a color different from the color of the shield field. The simplest emblem figures are formed as a result of the separation of the shield by several straight lines: vertical, horizontal and diagonal.
