A photograph of the New York Times building at night. The building's facade is illuminated, and the words "The New York Times" are prominently displayed in a large, gothic-style font across the top. Below the main entrance, there are glass-fronted shops, including one labeled "DEAN & DELUCA". The scene is lit with streetlights and the building's own lights, creating a vibrant urban atmosphere.

The New York Times

It is for the most discriminating consumers. The program will help to improve the listening, reading skills and, of course, enrich vocabulary so there are a lot of apparent advantages. One of the advantages is that the program has a user-friendly runtime environment. The training consists of 12 lessons, which are based on the materials of the authoritative newspaper The New York Times. You need to read the selected article, after the system will check how well you understand the text, audio and provide keywords.

Obama, No Day to Bask, He Starts to Build a Team ?

By PETER BAKER AND JEFF ZELENY
Published: November 6th, 2008

President-elect Barack Obama began moving Wednesday to build his administration and make good on his ambitious promises to point the United States in a different direction, as his commanding victory reordered the American political landscape and transfixed much of the nation and the world. ?
