General facts

Wales is part of Britain and the United Kingdom.

It's situated to the west of England and is around 256 km long and 96 km wide.

It covers just over 20,720 km² - that's about the same size as Massachusetts in the USA or half the size of Switzerland.

Motto: Cymru am byth
(English: Wales for ever)

St David – Patron Saint of Wales

On the 1st of March the Welsh celebrate the life of their patron saint, St David, who died on that day in 589AD.

The Cathedral of St David's in Pembrokeshire, where his remains are buried, became a popular place of pilgrimage.

St David's Day

To mark the day, Welsh people wear one or both of their national emblems - a daffodil or leek - and celebrate at special concerts and processions. Some people wear traditional costumes.
