Community center gym nears end of troubled construction process

By Terry Dillman
Oregon News Times

After two years of delays and a lawsuit for $750,000, the community center gym in Lincoln City is finally under construction. The city and the contractor, Oregon Community Center, are now working to complete the project. The gym is a 10,000-square-foot facility that will serve as a community center for the city. The gym is a key part of the city's plan to revitalize the downtown area. The gym is a key part of the city's plan to revitalize the downtown area.
