

(your) heart goes out to some one

If your heart goes out to someone, you feel great sympathy for them

искренне сочувствовать, сопереживать комуто

marc regis 18

To learn by heart

To have a change of heart

поменять мнение, точку зрения

To have a heart — of — stone

быть
бессердечным, бесчувственным

Just a cat

Once upon a time, little boy Sam was walking around the park and suddenly heard a plaintive meow from the bushes. "Oh no, is a kitten?" - thought he. While the boy was finding at the screaming creature, a tiny kitten appeared from the bush. It was red, rumped and absolutely small. Sam picked the kitten up, began pet and said " Shh, you needn't afraid anymore. I'll carry you to my home". The boy learned by heart dad's reaction, but he still had a little hope.

When Sam run into the house, his dad was watching TV.

- Dad, come here, please! - the boy shouted as loudly as he could.
- What is that? - dad asked
- Look, this kitten so pretty. It was on the street all alone, it was screaming and crying.
- Sam, stop. I've told you we will never have pets in the house.
- Dad, please... Why you have a heart of stone?
- Son calm down. It's just a cat, leave it outside.
- No, I can't. If the kitten will live in the street, I will too.
- This is nonsense.. - father didn't finish saying, Sam run out on street.

The boy had been walking down the street for 2 hours when his dad called him. Father said that he was worried about Sam with the kitten and has a change of heart. The kitten may live with them. Sam was extremely happy and thanked his father. They got the home together and lived happily ever after.